

Wireless providers should include their federal regulatory fees in the monthly rate so that consumers know what their monthly bill will be. The FCC should put a cap on the federal programs cost recovery fee that providers are allowed to charge.